Help Mothers

NomadHope.org is a non profit 501c3 organization providing assistance to nomadic schools and communities in the remote Sahara Desert region of West Africa.

We are actively partnering with tribal communities such as the Tuareg and Fulani of Mali, applying technology and engineering solutions to challenges that limit or prevent access to education. By solving problems that prevent schools' access to clean water, sanitation, electricity, and daily meals, these communities can sustain and grow schools and literacy programs for their children.

Committed to provide nomads with opportunities to sustain their chosen way of life, NomadHope.org focuses on education projects that are team oriented, community sustained, culturally sensitive, and technology driven. Self-reliance through local accountability is achieved by engaging locally based NGO partners and their community members, assisting them with the design, acquisition, installation, training, and maintenance of each project solution.

Nomad Hope is raising funds to help six remote desert schools with solar-powered electricity, access to clean water and sanitation in northern Mali.
